Response to Public Consultation: A1101 Commencement of Dietary Fibre Claim Provisions

Following is the response to the Public Consultation A1101 Commencement of Dietary Fibre Claim Provisions from the Grains & Legumes Nutrition Council (GLNC). GLNC is the independent authority on nutrition and health benefits of grains and legumes. The primary objective of GLNC is to link the Australian grains and legumes industry value chain from grain growers to food manufacturers, providing scientifically-based evidence about the role of grains and legumes in nutrition and health, to develop resources to support health promotion and education.

GLNC supports the application as outlined in GLNC's previous submission. As such GLNC supports the FSANZ impact analysis and assessment that it is appropriate to proceed with the proposed regulatory measures and delay the requirement to comply with the qualifying criteria for nutrition content claims about dietary fibre in Standard 1.2.7 – Nutrition, Health and Related Claims for 12 months, from and including 18 January 2016 until and including, 17 January 2017.

GLNC supports the two draft food regulatory measures including the new draft Standard and the draft consequential variation to Standard 1.2.7. in accordance with the Food Standards Australia New Zealand Act 1991 (FSANZ Act).

Yours sincerely,
Michelle Broom
