12. Submission Text: The requirement to have only pasteurized milk soft cheeses represents an exaggerated concern about health. No doubt it is a small additional health risk, probably much less than the risk of public swimming pools or not washing ones hands. We do not hear of the French, or other Europeans suffering didasters as a result of their cheese eating habits. I doubt it affects their life expectancy but it certainly adds to lifes pleasures. Cast off your blinkers. Live a tiny bit more dangerously and enjoy it a lot more! Hope this is not to late to be added to the other submissions
